

What is the Community Reinvestment Act?

The Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) is a federal law designed to encourage insured financial institutions to help meet the credit and community development needs of all income levels of their communities, including low- and moderate-income neighborhoods. Congress passed the Act in 1977 to reduce discriminatory credit practices against low-income neighborhoods.

The CRA requires banks to demonstrate their performance in meeting the needs of everyone in their community. All banks are periodically evaluated by their federal banking regulator to ensure that their lending is meeting the needs and is inclusive of all income levels in their markets. Larger banks must also show how they support their communities through community development services and qualified investments. Once a bank's regulator completes its CRA evaluation, the regulator issues a public report that assigns the bank an overall CRA rating.

What is the CRA Public File?

In accordance with the Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) regulation, Kearny Bank maintains and, upon request, makes available for public inspection, a complete copy of its CRA Public File, current each year as of April 1st.

The following is Section 228.43 from Regulation BB, which sets the requirements for the public file for state member banks:

Contents of the CRA Public File

A. Information made available to the Public. A bank shall maintain a public file that includes the following information:

1. All written comments received from the public for the current year and each of the prior two calendar years that specifically relate to the bank's performance in helping to meet community credit needs, and any response to the comments by the bank, if neither the comments nor the responses contain statements that reflect adversely on the good name or reputation of any persons other than the bank or publication of which would violate specific provisions of law;
